

Tanya Dannock - Bio

Tanya Dannock is the Managing Director of AdaptAbility at Work. She specialises in the design and delivery of customised flexible workplace programs for both public and private sector clients. Her consultancy offers a refreshingly practical approach to implementing flexible work practices to optimally navigate the complex overlay of business culture, leadership structures, productivity measures and individual staff needs.

Tanya's expertise is born of 20 years experience working across a range of social policies and service delivery associated with children, parenting and family relationships at the Executive Level in the Federal Government. Tanya is also a professional doula (birth assistant) and a highly regarded, qualified facilitator and trainer.

The uniting theme of Tanya's work is her desire to empower staff and employers to facilitate their success as individuals and as broader communities. This objective drives the astute application of her flexible workplace knowledge and skills to teach both leaders and teams how to increase personal and business wellbeing.
